

conformational disorder

in polymers

Structural disorder resulting from the statistical coexistence within the crystals of identical configurational units with different conformations.

Source:

Purple Book, p. 80