

isoentropic

A reaction series is said to be isoentropic if the individual reactions of the series have the same standard entropy of activation.

Source:

PAC, 1994, 66, 1077 (Glossary of terms used in physical organic chemistry (IUPAC Recommendations 1994)) on page 1128